Decision on Custody of Child Postponed

Habeas Corpus Proceedings Brought by Floyd Logan Are Continued to January 17.

Decision as to the custody of Elizabeth Fern Logan, 2-year-old daughter of Floyd Logan of near Barnard, was further deferred when habeas corpus proceedings before Judge John M. Dawson in circuit court yesterday were continued to January 17.

Mr. Logan was contesting the right of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Priscilla Baker, of Barnard, to keep the baby, whom she has cared for since birth.

Yesterday the plaintiff filed motion for judgment on the pleadings but the motion was overruled by the court.

Circuit Court Opens on Monday Morning

Jury Is Called to Assemble Wednesday —No Outstanding Cases on January Docket.

The January term of the Nodaway County circuit court opens Monday morning with Judge John M. Dawson back again on the bench.

The docket for the winter term is somewhat bulkier than usual, with 296 cases listed. There are no outstanding cases.

The petit jury is called to assemble the third day of court, Wednesday, January 12. Cases to be prosecuted by the state are of the usual run, with violators of the prohibition law predominating in number over all other offenders.

Monday, January 10, is parole day. On Friday, January 14, a naturalization case is set for hearing, when final papers may be granted.

FROWN UPON SPELLING BEE

BUT DECISION DOESN'T ELIMINATE COUNTY SPELLER.

VOTE ATHLETIC EVENTS

County Athletic Association Favors Basketball Tourney, Track Meet, Baseball League.

There will be no move on the part of the county high schools to sponsor a spelling contest this year.

However, an yschool or schools, desiring to present representative of the school for the district contest, may make arrangements with the county superintendent for a contest with other schols.

This was the decision arrived at this afternoon when twelve superintendents and principals of high and rural school met with Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent.

The county educators decided in favor of a county basketball tournament, a track meet and baseball league and dates for such events were to be set late this afternoon at a meeting of the executive board of the County Athletic Association.

Among the educators present at the meeting, two or three thought the spelling contest, as held in previous years, proved of considerable benefit, especially to the smaller high schools and rural schools. It was not the purpose of the decision to discourage the entrance of any school in a spelling contest, but the majority of the teachers felt they would not hold contests in their own schools in order to send a representative to a county contest.

The decision was so couched as to permit any schools that so desired to make arrangements with Mr. Somerville in order that some sort of elimination might be conducted in order that a speller could be certified to the district contest from Nodaway County.

The concensus of those attending the athletic meeting, over which L. L. Livengood presided, was that the probable date for the county basketball tournament for both boys and girls teams should be set for two weeks before the Northwest District tournament and the track and field meet one or two weeks after the district meet here in April.

A baseball league for those schools that may wish to join, will be formed and a schedule arranged later.

Those present at the meeting:

Mr. Livengood, Elmo; Ed Adams, Barnard; Claude Thompson and H. B. Ratledge, Burlington Junction; O. E. Jones, Hopkins; Garland Miller, Pickering; Hubert Garrett, Quitman; Donald Dowell, Guilford; L. L. King, Scudder school; Halley Ford, Harmony; Harry Nelson, Parnell; and S. D. Baker, Hedge College school.

MISSOURIANS SAFE IN IOWA

MOTORITSTS WITH '26 LICENSES ASSURED OF WELCOME.

PROTEST IS ANSWERED

Officer Who Threatened Quitman Man Overstepped Authority, Local C. of C. Is Told.

The mayor of Bedford, Ia., and Frank Fleming, clerk of the district court, representing the Taylor county court, have informed the local Chamber of Commerce that it is their opinion Page County, Iowa, officers overstepped their authority when ordering Missouri motorists to stay out of Iowa or get Iowa vehicle licenses.

D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, received a communication from these men stating that Missourians operating automobiles with 1926 license plates will in no way be molested by Taylor County officers, and they extended an invitation to all Nodaway Countians to visit their cities.

Their communication was in reply to a letter Mr. Caldwell had sent to Page and Taylor County authorities, stating that a Quitman motorist was threatened with arrest because he was operating an automobile with a 1926 Missouri license. Mr. Caldwell explained that license plates are not issued in this state until February 1.

The Taylor County men wrote:

"We are only too glad to have the citizens of our sister state come over the line and visit with us or trade with our merchants, as frequently we step over the line into your state and we would not like it if your officers would pick us up because our auto number did not entirely comply with the laws of your state."

Mr. Caldwell also has received a letter from Gerald G. Graff, secretary of the Clarinda Community Club, who likewise gives assurance that Missouri motorists will be treated with courtesy while in Page County. Mr. Graff stated he had interviewed county and city authorities at Clarinda and was unable to find out that the Quitman man was rebuked for driving a Missouri car with a 1926 license.

He added that officers there have assured him they have not in the past and will not in the future interfere with Missouri motorists displaying 1926 license tags.

The Clarinda man said: "In our city licenses are issued by January 1, but no attention is paid a former year's license until some time the following June, for the reason that Iowa licenses can be purchased the first three months of the ensuing year at a penalty."

Both Mr. Graff and the Bedford mayor were displeased that a motorist from a neighboring state had met with mistreatment by one of their officers.

She is survived by her husband James M. Clark, and seven children. In addition to the sons here, the children are Mrs. Ida Hood, Elmo; Mrs. Sue Goodspeed, Mound City; Mrs. Genevieve Schultz, Magna, Utah; Mrs. Stella Vandeventer, Carpenteria, Cal.; and W. T. Car in "Reverse" Instead of "Low," Backs Into Church

Getting the gear of her car into reverse instead of "low" gave Mrs. Alfred Sturm a short but thrilling automobile ride yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Sturm's car was parked in front of the First Methodist Church. She started the motor, put the gear into what she hought was "low" stepped on the gas, and then—things happened.

The car shot backward and toward the center of the street. It hit another car coming from that direction but did no damage except to a fender. The backing car turned and went up over the curb on the west side of the street, still backwards. It kept on over the sidewalk and did not stop until it hit the church. Then Mrs. Sturm had her first chance to find out what was going on. She drove the refractory car up the sidewalk to the Price Furniture Co. and there it turned back into the street, with no one much the worse for the exciting experience.

STATE RIGHTS FIGHT REVIVED

TWO SENATE MEASURES MEET STRONG OPPOSITION.

FILIBUSTER IS WAGED

Reed of Missouri One of Leaders in Battle Against Maternity and Canadian Milk Bills.

Washington, Jan. 8.—A rising tide of opposition to pending measures giving the Federal government further control over the life of the individual citizen has been manifested in the Senate.

State rights advocates are fighting two such bills which are being debated. They have forestalled a vote thus far, resorting to tactics that smack of a filibuster on one, the bill extending the Sheppard-Towner maternity aid act for two years. The other measure is the Lenroot bill applying the same standards to milk and cream imported from Canada as those provided in the New York state laws, which have become the model.

Advocates of these two bills have sought in vain for two days to get a vote.

Debate has centered about the power of the Federal government to legislate in matters that states right senators contend are state functions. They argue that both measures would encroach still further upon the domain of the state. States, they say, should furnish the aid to mothers and children provided by the maternity bill, while they hold that the effect of the milk bill would be to establish a uniform law for the whole country.

Senators Reed, Missouri, King, Utah, and Bruce, Maryland, all Democrats, leaders of the states rights bloc, are pressing the fight. They have been joined recently by Senator Walsh, Mass., and Bratton, New Mexico, Democrats.

King calls these bills "paternalistic" and points to them as further evidence of the "tendency toward bureaucratic government."

"Government bureaus," he said, "soon will be telling us how to wash our teeth and comb our hair."

President Coolidge has warned repeatedly against encroachment of the Federal government upon state functions. In his recent message to Congress he approved appropriations for extending the maternity act, but urged the Federal government to withdraw from this as soon as possible. He also has opposed any further extension of Federal aid for building roads after the present program expires.

The decision on the two bills now pending may point the way to a definite policy for the future, laid down by the senate.

Increase in Farm Values Apparent

Renewed Activity in Real Estate in Atchison County Expected During the Coming Months.

(Tarkio Avalanche)

With the sale last week of two tracts of land of eighty acres each in the vicinity of Tarkio at prices of $165 and $185 per acre, and the reported sale last week of a farm of forty acres near Fairfax at $300 per acre, the beginning of a period of renewed activity in real estate in this section appears to be well under way.

TO MANEUVER IN CARIBBEAN

U. S. SCOUTING FLEET SAILS FOR TARGET PRACTICE.

NEAR TROUBLE CENTER

War "Game," Planned Six Months Ago, to Be Staged Not Far From Mexico and Nicaragua.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The administration's policy toward Nicaragua and Mexico was bitterly attacked in both houses in Congress today as a course of action tending toward war.

Representative Huddleston and Senator Heflin, both Democrats of Alabama, took the floor in their respective houses to protest what they called warlike action taken at the behest of "big interests."

Huddleston demanded that President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg join the "first batch of troops" in case of war and added, "I am not willing that any single American boy shall be sent to Mexico to risk his life so that the oil companies may continue to pay dividends."

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 8.—Vessels of the United States scouting fleet, with the U. S. S. Seattle as flagship, sailed from Hampton Roads early tday for Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, where maneuvers will be held. While the maneuvers are routine in nature, having been planned six months ago, the presence of the fleet in Caribbean water at this time may be of considerable importance in the Central American situation.

With the exception of the U. S. S. Argonne, with 400 marines aboard, cruisers Cincinnati and Marblehead and the destroyers Barker, Smith Thompson and Osborne, which sailed several days ago under orders to report to Rear Admiral Latimer for special duty in Nicaraguan waters, all vessels of the scouting fleet were in the "armada" which sailed today.

The arrival of the scouting fleet at Guantanamo is scheduled for Wednesday of next week, when tactical and gunnery exercises will start. The air squadrons of the fleet will meet the vessels January 20 and will cooperate in target practice.

Reed Attacks the President's "White House Spokesman"

Washington, Jan. 8.—A demand was made today by Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, that steps be taken to ascertain the identity of the "white house spokesman," who purports to give the views of the President, when Mr. Coolidge receives the press.

Reed asserted newspaper accounts of Mr. Coolidge's Nicaraguan and Mexican views were accredited in some portion to Mr. Coolidge and in others to a "mysterious phantom," the white house spokesman.

Charges have been made that the spokesman is Mr. Coolidge himself, who conceals the identity of his remarks to newspaper men behind the impersonal authority of a spokesman, Reed said with typical raillery.

"I rise to a question of personal confusion," said Reed, playing upon the usual phrase of senators who rise to points of personal privilege.

"For some weeks I have been wandering in mists of doubt and uncertainty in reference to the public business of the country. There was suddenly injected into the newspapers a nameless individual called the 'spokesman of the President.' Naturally what we received from him was hearsay evidence.

"I have been questioning whether he was some mythological creature created by the wicked newspaper men of Washington. I am now in a state of hopeless confusion.

"I read in the papers this morning, 'white house spokesman cites source of Nicaraguan arms, sent to Nicaraguan rebels.'

"Mr. Coolidge was represented by the 'White House spokesman' as regarding something as grave, but these are the headlines, while in the body of the story statements are attributed to Mr. Coolidge himself."

Reed likened the spokesman to the oracle at Delphi, which "spoke what the guards were thinking."

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Puckett of Albany are spending the week-end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Puckett.

Hornsby Signs With Giants for 2 Years

Hornsby, who was manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, world's champions in 1926, will captain the Giants for the next two seasons. The Cardinals traded Hornsby to the Giants for Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring, veteran pitcher.

The contract figure was not announced. It had been reported Hornsby was seeking a yearly stipend of $40,000.

WILSON FILES VARE CONTEST

DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATE SEEKS PENNSYLVANIA SENATE SEAT.

FRAUDS ARE CHARGED

Petition Also Refers to Expenditures in Primary, Which Is Declared Part of Election.

Washington, Jan. 8.—William B. Wilson, defeated Democratis candidate for senator in Pennsylvania, today filed a contest against election of his successful opponent, William S. Vare.

Filing of the contest was announced by Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic floor leader. Wilson's petition for the contest contained the following allegations:

That Vare violated the corrupt practices act in expending $71,000 of his personal funds in the primary, which, it is argued, is a part of the election.

"That there were widespread registration frauds in Philadelphia, that the names of dead men and women, with the names of voters sick and in hospitals," and others.

That 120 "phantoms" were counted for Mr. Vare in one section of Philadelphia alone, and that 326 districts "exhibited the phenomenal condition that in 31 precincts not a single vote was recorded for Mr. Wilson."

U. S. FLAGSHIP SENT TO CHINA

ASIATIC FLEET COMMANDER IS ORDERED TO SHANGHAI.

SITUATION IS CRITICAL

All American Women and Children Ready for Flight From Hankow, —Force Only if Necessary.

British Sailors Landed.

London, Jan. 8.—British sailors from the gunboat Wyburn have gone ashore at Kuikiang, China, Sir Percival Phillips cabled the Evening News from Hankow today, to quell a riot in the British concession. A mob from the native quarters burst the concession gates after foreign women and children had embarked on river boats.

It was reported that the nationalists intended to seize the concession.

Washington, Jan. 8.—Alarmed by spreading anti-foreign riots in central China, the administration has ordered Admiral Williams, commander of the Asiatic fleet, to go from Manila to Shanghai with the cruiser Pittsburgs and all available destroyers.

Last reports from Consul-General Lockhart at Hankow described the situation there as critical, with all American women and children prepared to follow the fifty who joined the flight of the British to Shanghai.

American naval commanders standing by at Hankow on the Yangtze river have been ordered to use force only on major provocation for actual protection of American lives, officials here fearing that fire from foreign guns might start bloody reprisals by the nationalists.

Especial concern is felt for the missionaries in isolated areas.

The administration has not decided upon a line of action in China, nor has it announced a definite policy in reply to the unanswered British note.

Although this government is committed to increase of Chinese customs rates and abolition of foreign extra-territorial rights, it believes the change should be gradual if foreign interests are to be protected. Hence the concern here over the nationalist threat to make the change immediately.

Manila, Jan. 8.—The U. S. S. Pittsburgh, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, prepared to leave here today for Shanghai with a full contingent of sailors and accompanied probably by several destroyers.

Hints and Helps for Farmers
by Ross J. Fleetwood County Extension Agent

January 17-21 is the time set aside by the Missouri College of Agriculture as Farmers' Week. Of course the college is always open to visitors, but once each year at Farmers' Week the whole institution is thrown open to visitors and especial effort is made to see that each individual gets the type of information desired.

There will be short courses on agriculture, economics, agricultural engineering, horticulture, animal husbandry, community organization, dairy husbandry, poultry husbandry, bookkeeping and pest control, home economics and soils and crops.

Five daytime assemblies will be held at which time speakers of national renown will be heard. Four night programs will be held with other speakers.

Fifteen state associations will hold meetings during the week. The state corn and grain show will be held, also a large horticultural display.

Of course it is impossible for everyone to make the trip, but wherever possible I am sure it will be money and time well spent to take the trip and attend the week's exercises. Not only for the information secured but also for the associations one will get on such a visit.

An effort is being made to organize a cow-testing association in Nodaway County in the near future. A meeting of dairymen has been called Saturday, Jan. 15 in the Farm Bureau office for the purpose of discussing the proposition. Letters have been sent to most of those who were likely to be interested but if there are any others interested I would be glad to have them come to the meeting. The purpose of a cow testing association is briefly as follows: The association employs a tester who weighs the milk and tests the butterfat content from each cow in the herd once each month. He also weighs the feed and gives a monthly statement on each cow showing her profit or loss from month to month. It is the duty of the tested also to give advice on breeding, feeding and management. For the man interested in building up his herd a cow testing association is the surest and best method.

I don't suppose there was ever a time when so many so-called commercial feeds and remedies were on the market for the use of live stock feeders. Many of these preparations are very worthwhile products and are very economical and satisfactory. On the other hand some of them are worthless and are even worse than that for they are used in the place of a really worthwhile product. It is impossible to look at a product and always be able to determine its value but there are some general considerations which should prove of value. In buying commercial feeds the primary object is to secure a protein supplement—all classes of live stock require carbohydrates, fat and protein. In the corn belt no source of carbohydrates and fat is so cheap and satisfactory as corn, generally speaking. However, corn is low in protein and in order to balance the ration it is necessary to feed some protein—rich feed as a supplement. Therefore when buying a feed to supplement corn the primary object is to secure protein. As a general rule the protein content then should be the price determiner. As an example, tankage contains 60 per cent protein or 1200 pounds per ton, from this it is easy to figure the cost per pound for protein. A feed containing only 30 per cent protein would only have 600 pounds protein per ton and on a protein basis should be worth only about one-half as much as tankage per ton. It is true that the lower protein feed may contain quite a large percentage of carbohydrates but your own corn will supply these carbohydrates cheaper. I hope no one will conclude from the above example that I recommend tankage above all sources for protein for this is not necessarily so. I am merely using this as an example for a basis to figure from. It would take too much space to go into details and take up each of these products separately but I do believe that a little sound figuring before buying of so-called commercial feeds, when you have home grown feeds on your farm, which are better, will save money. A good business man doesn't buy until he knows about the product in question. If he doesn't know himself he takes it to some one who does know and finds out. Good business pays on the farm.

A half bag of acid phosphate or more on each load of manure that goes out as a top dressing on winter wheat will pay big dividends. This practice followed in Ohio where the manure and phosphate were spread ahead of corn in a corn, wheat and clover rotation (or once every three years) gave a return of 7 bushels of wheat, 5 bushels corn and one half ton clover as an average of several years. This increase was only where manure alone was used.

The more attractive homes project sponsored by the extension service this year will consist of kitchen improvement, storage and water systems, rug making, basketry, making lamp shades and making small furniture. Any club interested in this work should get in communication with this office as soon as possible for the work will start soon.

STATEMENT

By the President of Dodge Brothers, Inc.

Within a few months, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will introduce a new line of motor cars, in no way conflicting with the market for Dodge Brothers present types, but occupying a considerably higher price field and produced in limited quantities.

Combining Dodge Brothers well known dependability with exceptional performance and striking beauty of appointment and design, these distinguished vehicles, we believe, will instantly set a new and higher standard in fine car practice.

Dodge Brothers will continue to produce their present line in maximum quantities to meet a demand which, during the year just ended, was very much the largest in their history, reaching the record total of 330,000 cars.

America has always expected great things from its greatest industry. But the announcement of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet has been the automotive sensation of all time!
Here is a car which in beauty, luxury, quality and modern design challenges the costliest creations of the day. Here, in a price class where average standards have been the rule, is now offered a car so far beyond all expectation that comparisons cease to exist.
Seven superb models styled as low priced cars were never styled before and offering such marks of fine car distinction as: full crown one-piece fenders, bullet type lamps and "fish tail" rear deck modeling! New and supremely beautiful bodies by Fisher! And, above all, infinitely finer quality—the result of a host of additional improvements such as AC oil filter, AC air cleaner, coincidental steering and ignition lock, large 17 inch steering wheel, gasoline gauge and many, many others!
All this is combined to a supreme degree in the long famous leader of the Chevrolet line—the Coach. It would be a brilliant achievement for any manufacturer merely to design such a splendid car to sell at ANY reasonably low price. But to sell it at the amazing price of $595 is a feat of history making proportions. This one price reduction alone would suffice to center world-wide attention on Chevrolet. But due to economies of tremendous production plus the vast resources of General Motors, Chevrolet also announces striking price reductions on other models.
For years Chevrolet has led the world in providing Quality at Low Cost. But now with a new and more beautiful car—with a car infinitely finer in quality and greatly lower in price, Chevrolet stands supreme and unchallenged in dollar-for-dollar value!
No matter in what price class you intend to buy or whether you plan to spend more or less than the price of a Chevrolet, come in today and see the most beautiful low priced Coach ever designed. Admire its marvelous style and grace! Mark its many new fine-car features! Learn for yourself by personal inspection why, at its new low price, it is the greatest sensation of America's greatest industry!

Burlington Junction

By J. Howard Thompson

Oren Lanning of Maryville had occasion last Monday morning to communicate with his sister-in-law, Mrs. Bruce Stonehocker, in Los Angeles, Cal., and put in his call over the long distance telephone, and in a few minutes was engaged in conversation with her, hearing her as well as though she was in the room near by. Science has at least annihilated distance.

Boyd Coder, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coder, living in the north part of town, met with a very painful and serious accident while playing football at school on Wednesday. In some way he fell and a number of enthusiastic players fell upon his in such a way as to fracture his collarbone and otherwise bruise his body. He was hurried to the office of a local physician, and the fracture reduced and is now resting as easily as possible at the home of his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. House, drove to Afton, Ia., last week and visited over Sunday with Mrs. House's parents, returning home on Tuesday of this week. They report the roads and weather ideal while they were in the Iowa town. Vern Mitchell of Pickering, Mo., looked after their drug store business while they were away.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gardner are looking for a new location. They moved their household effects to Elmo Thursday and will store them there for a time. Mrs. Gardner and the baby will visit for a time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Trueblood, of Elmo, while Carl is looking for a position. He will visit both Kansas City and Ohama, in looking for work.

Mrs. Clara Anderson and her husband Charles Anderson, and Mrs. Etta Anderson, all of whom live at Wray, Colo., who have been here for the past two months caring for their mother, Mrs. Emma Taylor, confined to her bed with cancer, left Thursday for their home, by auto. The two women are sisters and will return to their mother a little later.

Joseph Horning, living west of town about five miles, is very ill with a poisoned system superinduced by an attack of flu. He is confined to his bed and does not get better as fast as his family had hoped. He has been sick about three weeks. His attending physician considers the case a very serious one.

James Shores, who has been very sick with pneumonia, and whose life has been despaired of, seems now to be convalescent, and on the road to recovery. While he is very weak yet, the fever has left him and with a little time he will fully recover unless complications develop.

Many of the members of the Christian Church and others of the community are planning to attend the "Leadership-Training" meetings to be held in the Christian Church in Maryville next week. Among those who are on the faculty for this special school is the Rev. J. T. Bloom of St. Joseph. Mr. Bloom and the writer were in Camp Travis, San Antonio, Tex., during the World War, and were intimately associated together in Building No. 30. Mr. Bloom was chaplain for the 86th Regiment of drafted men, and the writer was a Y. M. C. A. man in the same unit. They became very warm friends.

George M. Jones, a former resident of this community, living near Oakes, N. D., came last week to visit his daughter, Mrs. L. T. Murphy, and to look after some business matters. He will remain here several days. He is much in love with his northern home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Scott, three miles west of Maryville, were New Years day host and hostess to the following from Burlington Junction: Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Houston, and daughter, Anna, Mr. and Mrs. John Houston, and daughter, Irene, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Houston, and daughters, Marjorie Dean, and Alice. Mrs. Scott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Houston. They had a memorable family day together.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Warren, with their sons, Ben and Paul, and Mrs. Birdwell, a sister of Mrs. Warren, are sojourning in south Missouri at this time. They will stop at Osceola, Mo., to visit another sister of Mrs. Warren, except, Mr. Warren, who will go on to West Plaines, Mo., to hunt, fish, and incidentally attend to some important business matters. They will be gone two or three weeks.

As we pen this last item for our Saturday's letter, the sky is overhung with clouds and the weather is forboding, with a promise from the weather man that normal winter weather will soon supplant the mild and balmy spring weather we have been experiencing the past week or more.

John Rasco a deputy sheriff, living at Barnard, was in town on special business and in conference with the local deputy sheriff, Van Reavis, on Wednesday of this week. We have not heard of any arrests being made.

Judge Jesse Robertson, probate judge, was in town Wednesday of this week, interviewing his many friends, and attending to some business matters. Burlington is the former home of Judge and Mrs. Robertson, and they are both very popular here.

John Smith wrote in his diary, "I'll dress better in 1927, for business reasons; then, I'll be more thrifty in 1927, for business reasons." Then he bought a Clothcraft suit to prove he meant a suit with twice the looks, teeming with style and service, at half the price he'd paid before. John Smith was a wise guy.

The writer recently had a hundred mile drive, taking in Barnard, Graham, Mound City, Maitland, Skidmore, Quitman. While away he noticed at least two things of interest. One was the large piles of corn piled up about the farm barns, indicating a good corn crop, and that it was about all harvested. The other was, the unprecedented amount of stock cattle in the fields, indicating that cattle feeding is again coming to its own among Nodaway County farmers. In some instances we saw as many as 150 head of White Faces, ready for the feed yards. All that bespeaks prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Booher, living five miles east of town, were host and hostess to Rev. and Mrs. J. Howard Thompson Thursday of this week. The Thompsons spent the day with them and had a most delightful visit. Mr. and Mrs. Booher have lived on the same farm for thirty years and are among our very best citizens.

Dr. Clyde Gray, an osteopath of Horton, Kan., and a half-brother of L. E. Miller of Burlington Junction, drove up Tuesday night from his home for an overnight visit with his brother, returning to his work Wednesday. Mr. Miller has been ill for some time, having been confined to his bed for some days with the flu. As soon as he is able to make the trip, he will go to Rochester, Minn., for a thorough examination.

The sad news of the death of J. Wesley Jones of Loveland, Colo., reached here early this week. Mr. Jones was a former highly respected citizen of this community and was very much loved. He was a man 72 years old and prominent in all the affairs of his community. Mrs. Jones is the daughter of Mrs. James Evans, and a sister of Mrs. T. E. Fordyce of Burlington Junction. He was buried at Loveland.

Mrs. Pearl McLaughlin, township collector for this township, has completed her work and has made her report. She announces that the magnificent sum of $32,455.58 was collected up to the first day of the New Year. This sum, however, is a trifle les than that which was collected to the same date last year. It bespeaks the prosperous condition of the township.

The chorus of the Methodist Church has begun its practice for the Cantata, to be given in the Church on Sunday night, February 13, or the nearest Sunday night to Lincoln's birthday. There will be between twenty-five and thirty voices, and under the leadership of Mrs. Vern Caldwell, will give a worthwhile musical program. Announcements will be given from time to time, that the public may be fully advised, as to the time of rendering it.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gray spent the week end with Mrs. Gray's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Downing of the Xenia neighborhood.

Elmo H. S. Debates Sheridan January 17

For its first debate in the Northwest Missouri Debating League, Elmo High School has been matched with Sheridan, the debate to be held in the Elmo High School auditorium on the evening of January 17. The question is: Resolved, that the adherence of the United States to the Permanent Court of International Justice is a wise public policy. Elmo will uphold the affirmative and Sheridan the negative sides of the argument.

This is the first of a series of debates to determine the debating championship of Northwest Missouri. All the teams in the league are matched by drawing. The winners of each series of debates being matched again until all but two are eliminated. These meet at Maryville during the annual spring contests to decide the championship. A cup is awarded the wining teams and remains the property of the school which they represent. Gold medals are awarded the indivadual debaters.

Inez Livengood and Helen Hamilton will probably represent Elmo in the first contest. At present there are four students working on debate. The two named are preparing the affirmative side of the question and Maud Ella Lamar and Beulah Phillips are working on the negative. During the year of 1926, 20 vocational agriculture boys of Maryville High School conducted individual projects in corn, potatoes, wheat and oats, making a total net profit of $2498.05. Of this sum, $2223.58 was made from 13 corn projects; $117.30 was made from 4 potato projects; $56.53 was made from 2 oat production projects and $100.64 was made from one wheat project.

The following is a list of the names of boys who completed projects and a statement of net profit from each project:

Forrest New, corn production, $167.60 net profit;

Richard New, oat production, $116.30 loss;

Wesley Dowden, wheat production, $100.64, net profit.

One hundred and twelve other vocational agricultural departments in Missouri are also showing a neat profit, coach Elmer Coats said today. "Nodaway County should have more than one vo-ag. school. Such places as Hopkins, Burlington Junction and Picering could well afford to establish the work of vocational agriculture. Harrison County has three vo-ag. departments and all are showing profit.

"In figuring charges on the above projects, rent on land, interest on investment, depreciation on tools, horse labor and man labor, were used to get total charges. Any one wishing to look through the projects books turned in by each student may do so by visiting the vocational agriculture department at Maryville High School.

The Web of Fear

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Through a plot engineered by James Mulholland and five aides, Ames, Chester, Quantrill, Fenne and Vereker, Robert Masterton, accused of selling government secrets, is sentenced to 12 years hard labor in Atlanta prison. His millionaire grandfather is the only one who believes him innocent. A beautiful and wealthy young woman, Cynthia Knowles, is greatly affected by the verdict. The plotters think they are perfectly safe with Masterton behind the bars. Vereker is arrested and sentenced to three years in Atlanta. Cynthia confesses to Mulholland that her love for Masterton is dead and her life is ruined. She agrees to marry Mulholland. Masterton's grandfather dies and leaves him six million dollars. Fenne demands money from Mulholland who brutally thrusts him aside. A few hours after Cynthia is married she receives a note accusing Mulholland of engineering Masterton's conviction. Mulholland cannot convince her of his innocence, and she locks him out of her room. Vereker, dying in prison, offers proofs to free Masterton. He ask's Masterton's forgiveness and receives it after giving him the names of the conspirators. Masterton solemnly promises that he will not invoke the law but will take vengeance into his own hands. Back in New York Masterton befriends Sadie Hicks, hungry and looking for a job, and accidentally learns from her that Cynthia has married Mulholland. He gives Sadie a job as his secretary and declines an offer to take up his old duties.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 11.

Behind the Mask.

The orchestra of the Ritz was concluding its programme.

Possibly Gerald Ames had no ear for music. The dying notes seemed to get on his nerves; he reached for his glass of ginger ale and finding it empty beckoned irritably and ordered another.

"Four!" said Quantrill, "bring four."

Mulholland regarded his three companions with amusement and a touch of contempt.

Mulholland's table, always reserved for him on Thursday evenings, was usually a center of gaiety and good fellowship. But tonight it seemed to him that it was positively a black spot in that assembly of charming women and well-groomed men; that medley of music and laughter, white throats and sparkling jewels.

Ames, Quantrill and Chester were sunk in a depression that somehow they could not shake off. The only one comparatively at ease was Mulholland.

"My friends," he said acidly, "we have surely tackled situations of difficulty and even danger before now, and I cannot remember that any of you showed anxiety."

"We have never been up against anything like this," muttered Ames, picking up a folded evening newspaper from the table. "If it were any man except Masterton I should not care. It says here——"

Mulholland leaned across, took the paper from him and thrust it into the pocket of his dinner jacket.

There was a strength and confidence in Mulholland that restored the equanimity of his guests. Their expressions grew less troubled.

"You are disturbing yourselves for a mere myth—a chimera," said Mulholland. "What do you suppose, Quantrill, that Masterton would do if he knew exactly what part I had played in that disaster of his?"

"I don't know," muttered Quantrill, with a faint shiver.

"Remember this: even if by any miracle Masterton knew the facts, he can have no proofs—and there is nothing whatever he could do. He is now a wealthy man, and I am open to bet you $500 to ten, that he does not even suspect us."

Mulholland stopped and very deliberately laid down his cigar . . . . his eyes were fixed on the doorway of the main entrance, where at that moment stood a tall, imposing figure.

It was Robert Masterton. He stood motionless in the entrance, scanning the assembly of diners at the various tables. Then, passing his hat and cloak to an attendant he came forward, drawing the glove from his right hand.

There was absolute silence at Mulholland's table as the newcomer, at a steady, deliberate pace, crossed the floor of the restaurant and advanced towards the four men.

The uncertainty and the tension were so great that, though there was plenty of noise in the crowded room it seemed to each of the partners that he could hear his own heart beating.

When Masterton arrived within a speaking distance, the four rose to their feet.

Masterton halted within arm's length, and quietly surveyed them. Then with a smile, he held out his hand.

"How are you, Mulholland?" he said. "Have you a place here for an exile who returns from his wanderings? You've all had dinner—so have I. What a pity; we might have dined together and you would have told me all the news. This is a great occasion for me. One feels like a schoolboy released for the holidays!"

Mulholland grasped the hand held out to him and pressed it warmly; as soon as he released it, it was claimed by all the others in turn, with hearty goodwill and a chorus of almost boisterous congratulations. Nor was the welcome feigned, for they felt so swift an inward sense of relief that it broke out spontaneously in all of them, so frank was Masterton's air of good-fellowship. It was clear now that he knew nothing, and had nothing to conceal.

"Waiter, bring another chair!" said Mulholland heartily. "Sit down, my dear fellow! All New York has missed you, but I'll warrant nobody will give you so royal a welcome as we four."

They almost overwhelmed him. They took their cue from Mulholland. They made no reference to the past or the experience he had undergone. If he wished to speak of these it was for him to begin. The note that they struck was a boisterous one; the happy present and the happier future.

Masterton said little, indeed for some listened with a pleasant, inscrutable face, and when there came a lull in time he had not the opportunity. He

"No thank you," said Masterton to Mulholland. "Ihave to pay my respects to your wife."

general effusiveness he looked around him with a slight sigh of satisfaction.

"Yes, it is very pleasant to be back again," said he. "Mulholland, I have never seen you looking so prosperous and radiant."

He turned to Quantrill.

"And our legal friend, no doubt with some interesting and intensely profitable case on his list, which he is handling with the accustomed secret and discretion?"

Quantrill was conscious of an inward chill, as though he had swallowed a lump of ice.

"Gerald Ames, too," continued Masterton, "sleek and beautifully groomed as ever, a happy social bee, flitting from club to club, a friend of the highly placed and the elect—full of the most fascinating and exclusive information."

"Flatterer!" said Ames with a sleepy smile.

"And the incomparable Chester, in my opinion the most finished character actor of our day; a dozen men in one—yet always his resourceful, ingenious self."

Chester did not answer. The sense of uneasiness had returned.

"And finally," concluded Masterton, looking round the table with an inquiring glance, "the busy, capable little Fenne, once an inseparable member of your party—is he also happy and flourishing? Why is he not with you?"

Quantrill felt a gentle dew break out upon his forehead. Masterton's cycle of questions was complete. He had inquired after the absent member of the original five. They could no longer doubt his meaning. Mulholland was the only one capable of answering.

"One does not see much of Fenne nowadays," he said blandly.

"I confess I could never stand him," put in Ames. "Not a college man, and hadn't been anywhere to school."

"I understand—not your social equal, of course," said Masterton, smiling.

He looked across the table at Mulholland.

"It seems this is a bachelor party. But I have to congratulate you, Mulholland—have I not—on your happy entry into the married state?"

Mulholland bowed, rather coldly. The other men sat silent.

"The news only reached me tonight," said Masterton. "I have been so out of the world, you know—but they put my release forward a few hours. Mrs. Mulholland is, I hope, well?"

"Quite," replied Mulholland imperturably. "She is dining here tonight; though not at our table. This is a bachelor party, as you remarked. I thought that you had seen her."

Masterton turned his head and looked across the room. For the first time he became aware of Cynthia.

She was sitting at a little corner table, laid for two, at the end of the balcony, where he had not been able to see her from the doorway. Her back was partly to him; she was wearing a simple, very attractive black dress. He could see the white gleam of her shoulders.

The eyes of Mulholland's three companions were upon Masterton's face. They were utterly at a loss what to make of him, so complete was his self-control, and so sphinx-like his expression. He might have been glancing casually at a woman he had never seen before.

"I see she is engaged at the moment," he said quietly. "I seem to recognize her companion."

Cynthia was leaning forward slightly, her bare arms resting on the table; she seemed to be talking earnestly with an elderly man sitting opposite her, whose face was in the shadow.

"It's Goleman, isn't it?" broke in Quantrill rather huskily. He felt that he must say something; the silence was oppressive.

"Of course—Dick Coleman, who led the defence for me," said Masterton. "He failed that time—but then he was making bricks without straw. One of the most brilliant counsel at the Bar. One must not disturb them; no doubt they have a great deal to say to each other; but in the meantime how delightful it is to see so many old friends!"

He lifted a glass of water to his lips, "I drink to your happiness and to the prosperity of all of you!"

He drained the glass, and set it down with a slight sigh.

"The water at Atlanta was very flat and uninspiring," he said.

"It—it must have been a horrible place?" interjected Ames rather hastily.

Masterton glanced at him and nodded.

"You've described it in a word," said he. "None of you, my dear fellows, has any conception whatever what life is like there. If any of you ever pray, your first prayer should be that you never will. Would you like to hear my impressions? I don't wish to harrow your feelings, on a happy occasion like this. But to a sensitive man it is simply a hell upon earth.

"One effect the jail had on me, however, was to rouse a real sympathy for my fellow convicts, who in different degree suffered the same despair."

Story — Saturday . . . . . THREE

Quantrill, whose eyes had grown more gloomy, looked up and smiled slightly.

"Your experience has had one good effect on you, Masterton. It has evidently taught you to be merciful."

Master shook his head.

"I am the least merciful man in the world," said he, "and the least forgiving. But this is too dismal and sombre a theme for such a happy occasion," he said, smiling, "when the world is so fair and so well worth living in and the future so full of promise, and old friends unite in welcoming me back to liberty. I must leave you now, and many thanks, all of you, for receiving me so cordially."

"Don't go yet," said Quantrill anxiously, "have a cigar, or——"

"No, thank you," said Masterton. "Good-night. Good-night, Mulholland, I have to pay respects to your wife."

He bowed to the four, and with the same air of quiet assurance he walked across and halted in front of Cynthia Mulholland's table.

"My Twenty-Four Hours"

By Benito Mussolini, Premier of Italy

as told to

THOMAS B. MORGAN, Rome Manager of the United Press.

Copyright 1927 by United Press Associations.

(This is the fourth of a series of articles on his daily life and work by Benito Mussolini, as told to Thomas B. Morgan, Rome manager of the United Press. Each article in this series has been personally revised, corrected and approved by Premier Mussolini.)

Government, to be good, must be efficient. It must achieve the greatest net result with the minimum of lost effort. If there be wastage of labor, duplication, overlapping or lack of co-ordination then there are serious defects in the government machinery. There must be unity of policy, unity of responsibility and unity of direction. Without these, government becomes a slip-shod, haphazard, hit-or-miss business, able to continue only because it can demand tribute from the entire nation.

A private business must be efficient or die. It has no reserve on which to call unless it has created that reserve itself. It must sustain itself by its own merits. Its manager must avoid wastage, duplication, overlapping and must coordinate all the parts of his organization in a smooth-running machine. He is responsible and held to strict account for its success. He directs it with a single aim and single policy, his policy.

The United States presents to the world numerous examples of gigantic successful business organizations, which to arrive at their great achievements must have been governed by these principles. There was one direction, policy and responsibility centered in one man, on whom the whole operation of the immense organization depended. The giant steel, oil, copper, transportation and other industries were developed under these geniuses, who in their day, were veritable dictators, whose words were law throughout their respective realms. They created smooth-running organizations of human units finally reaching a degree of efficiency which has been the marvel of the world.

Lauds City Manager Plan.

American municipalities are recognizing the need of centralization of the administrative powers and of the fixing of responsibility in their adoption of the "city manager" plan. It would seem that they are disregarding the worn-out system of political affiliations and of shirking of responsibility and substituting it by the appointment of a capable, expert and responsible officer. Thus, many of them had even adopted the idea of "podesta" that is, the institution of a responsible municipal officer managing the community, long before Fascism installed it for the administration of our towns and cities. It is the only logical and practical way of securing efficiency, insuring rapid decision and action and of laying one's finger upon the particular man, guilty of neglecting or deserving of praise for promoting those things deemed essential for the welfare and progress of the municipality.

It is just such business efficiency on a larger scale, we have tried to work into the government machine of Italy. We are succeeding. We have practically rebuilt the old machine, substituting a part here and there and renewing it. It has been completely overhauled and speeded up and has already shown its productive power. Conceived on the same lines as the successful business organizations, it centers responsibility and unifies control, culminating in one man at the head charged with its direction.

Heads Seven Departments.

Promptly at nine o'clock each weekday, I am at my desk in the Viminale Palace, the seat of the Minister of the Interior, to direct this huge machine. I have under my immediate supervision, the administration of seven ministeries, the presidency, interior, foreign affairs, war, navy, air and "corporazioni", the latter being an entirely fascist creation designed especially to deal with the relations between capital and labor. I also supervise the command of the fascist militia, of which I am commander-in-chief. The work of these ministries is so coordinated that the business to be transacted is done with the dispatch of a highly efficient private enterprise. Every day for five hours, until two o'clock, the entire government business of these departments, except the ministry of foreign affairs, is directed and supervised with business thoroughness and rigidity.

At two, I take a light lunch and am then at my desk at the Chigi palace, the seat of the Foreign Affairs, where I remain until ten in the evening on the constant go, save for taking a glass of milk at my desk at six. The work is that of directing Italian foreign relations, of examining and answering correspondence, receiving ambassadors and ministers, and holding numerous imperative conferences and audiences.

When the chamber of deputies and senate are in session, my attendance at one or the other is dovetailed into the schedule. Cabinet meetings too must find a place in the day's limited hours. I attend the chamber and senate ready to take up questions which might be introduced on the conduct of the government and to keep the deputies and senators informed on the policy of the administration.

My colleagues in the cabinet and the under-secretaries of state know that the government business must be handled with enthusiasm and promptitude. Our work must be intensive and productive. They know my requirements in this regard. They know that they cannot approach me unless their mission is one of government business. There is no time to joke. Everything must be to the point and must be worth discussing. Each usually has his business well-defined and when he sees me, need stay but a few minutes. They have acquired skill in condensation which enables me to go quickly to the matter in hand and to settle it.

I am fortunately blessed with a faculty for quick decision which permits me to accomplish an immense amount of work. I cannot stand vacillating executives. Ministers of a professional type are useless as administrators. They take so much time for decision that the whole business of their department is delayed. This cannot be tolerated in any branch of my government. Ministers, before we came into power, deliberated and vacillated for years before putting into operation. We have created an aptitude for quick decision in our public affairs which coupled with our intensive effort has achieved things not dreamed of before our advent to power.

We have settled our debt with England and America, stiffened Italian Finance, strengthened the lira and now have consolidated the public debt by the launching of the Lictoral loan. For or sea commerce, we built the "Roma," the biggest ship in the Mediterranean service and will build two new liners, the fastest in the world, forty knots an hour, taking only four or five days from Italy to New York and seven to Buenos Aires.

Fascism's Achievements.

Fascism constructed in two years the Roma-Ostia electric line, a project planned for twenty years, designed to give the people of Rome access to their own seashore. Fascism constructed the Apulia aqueduct to supply forty communes with an aggregate population of 3,000,000 with water; is building the longest tunnel in world between Florence and Bologna,—fifteen miles long—is completing the Rome to Naples direct line to reduce the running time by one half and undertaking numerous projects to be brought to successful consummation under fascist initiative and drive.

I came into the office a young man, thirty-nine, the youngest premier Italy ever had. I arrived with the force of youth. It was natural for me to be able to undertake greater burdens than the ministers of the old regimes. They could not stand the intense physical strain,—they were sixty, seventy and sometimes eighty years of age. The combined ages of the men in my cabinet total slightly over two hundred, while in one of the cabinets of Signor Giolitti, the total years of the ministers reached eleven hundred.

American presidents, alas, suffer greatly from the strain of office. Roosevent, however, during his incumbency stood it well and came out of office a very strong man, for he was young. He was, too, a believer in a disciplined life and so am I. He was a wielder of the "big stick", which is a fascist trait. He also was a man of quick decision and rapid execution. He was an untiring worker, too,—a great administrator. He was truly one of those who stood out in bold relief in his generation and cast his influence upon the entire world.

My collaborators are all young men. I have three under-secretaries of state, who have hardly passed thirty. There is a great advantage in youth. It is filled with enthusiasm to achieve. It may be argued that it lacks experience but it more than compensates in its intensity of spirit. It will attempt the impossible and often it will succeed. Youth and the dominating spirit of oneness with fixed responsibilities and policy have been of marked assistance to me, achieving what was never dreamed of under the old system of political party affiliations.

At one of the palaces where he does his daily work, Premier Mussolini has given orders that no woman shall be admitted to his presence. He tells why in tomorrow's Democrat-Forum and Tribune. He also tells of the many extra-officio duties attendant upon his position.

Good Hope

How do you do, this fine New Year? Hope each and every one had a Merry Christmas and the many good resolutions that have been made will continue steadfast throughout the coming year.

If the old proverbs are true, the first four months will be beautiful winter and spring months, the four days of this year sure have been fine, the roads soft but drying fast, all have been dragged more or less that we have traveled over.

There are several people in the community who have hard colds and a touch of influenza, and the whooping cough has made its appearance south of us.

Last Friday morning while Floyd Morehouse was loading shock fodder to haul into the barn, his thumb was bitten by a coon that had made its nest in the fodder. Floyd said he held on for five minutes it seemed, but Floyd succeeded in killing him; after a few treatments by a doctor his thumb is getting along very well.

Today, while Guy Blanchard was helping to saw wood for Mart Young, a big log fell and caught Guy's hand and three fingers were mashed, two of them very badly. John Morehouse took him to the doctor to have it dressed and he has to go back again tomorrow.

Mrs. Orpha Ringold is still confined to her bed but we heard yesterday that she was improving. We hope she is, and will soon be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Huffstutter and grandson, Lloyd, from Omaha, spent last week with W. D. Jones and John Morehouse and families. They left Sunday morning for their home by auto.

D. P. Jones and John Jones, the father and brother of Mrs. John Morehouse are visiting here from Orville, Cal., and today Mr. and Mrs. Willis Frankum and Mrs. F. M. Ryan from Maryville drove up to Morehouse's to see Mr. Jones and John. They all were neighborse twenty or twentyfive years ago west of Quitman.

Miss Marie Jones went to Maryville Friday morning to spend the day with Miss Carmileta Beattie, and Miss Beattie returned home with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Gray, northeast of Hopkins spent New Year's eve and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Marlin Harris. Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Harris are old time school chums.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Jones entertained at New Year's dinner, the father, D. P. Jones and brother, John Jones, who are here from California, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Huffstutter and Lloyd from Omaha, Mr. and Mrs. John Morehouse and grandma; and Miss Carmileta Beattie from Maryville.

The W. W. Club will meet with Mrs. Carl Burk Thursday afternoon of next week, Jan. 15th.

Miss Alice Robbins, Hopkins, spent a few days last week in the Henry Behm home; Wednesday evening they all spent the evening with W. D. Jones and family, with the Huffstutters and John Morehouse's there also.

Mr. and Mrs. Leman Morehouse visited their son, Ula Morehouse and family, and Sunday evening they were calling on Mrs. Laura Morehouse and family.

Today, Marlin Harris bought from John Morehouse, one of those fine Spotted Poland China male pigs, that John raises.

Yesterday, Jan. 3, being the birthdays of Mrs. Axie Baldwin and her niece, Mrs. Guy Blanchard, they were the honor guests at a special dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Ol Coleman. Other guests were Mrs. Coleman's brother, Bert Baldwin, Mrs. Baldwin and their son, Teddie. Mrs. Asa Ringold and Guy Blanchard. Mrs. Bladwin is Mrs. Coleman's mother.

Yesterday and today seemed to have been chicken selling days. Trucks from local markets came out and gathered several dozens from Mrs. Loy and Guy Blanchard, Mrs. Wm. Anderson and Mrs. Bert Baldwin. There may have been others but we didn't hear.

Mr. and Mrs. John Morehouse went to Clarinda yesterday with a load of White Langshan and Silver Laced Mr. Morehouse expect to take another olad of hens to the Berry poultry farm, where they are sold for breeding purposes.

We are still trying to have Sunday School and church at Good Hope, but last Sunday the roads were so soft in the afternoon that some of the hills were hard to get up, consequently at the preaching hour some who would have gone to church could not get there, but we hope for better roads next Sunday.

Grand View

Grand View school opened Jan. 3 after a week's vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth Herndon of St. Joseph spent Tuesday night with Mr. and Mrs. Edd Herndon.

Mrs. Gail Boyd received word her sister, Miss Doris Alexander, who has been seriously ill in a St. Joseph hospital, is improving.

Howard Alexander left Tuesday for a visit with his mother, Mrs. Anne Alexander and sisters, Mrs. Neva Apple and Miss Genevieve Alexander in Indiana.

Ira Cline of Kansas is spending a few weeks in the homes of his nephews, Al and Sam Cline.

The Friendship Club met with Mrs. Coleborne Payne Thursday afternoon with ten members and two visitors present. Since the meeting has been postponed we had our Christmas exchange and election of officers, who are: President, Mrs. M. P. Jones; vice-president, Mrs. Coleborne Payne; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Arthur Owens; reporter, Mrs. Al Cline. A plate luncheon was served by hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Faubion. Others present were Mrs. Roxie Faubion and children, Mrs. Arthur Owens, Mrs. W. A. Wilson ,Mrs. Walter Hart, Mrs. Gail Boyd, Mrs. Chester Logan, Mrs. M. P. Jones, Mrs. Bert Hart, Mrs. Al Cline, Forrest Jones and Mary Hart. Next meeting will be January 20, with Mrs. Walter Hart.

Albert Lemon and family moved to Rocky Ford, Colo., on Friday. Randolph Batt and family are moving to the farm they vacated.

Mrs. Bert Hart and daughters spent Saturday in Sheridan at Edd Lawler's visiting her sister Mrs. Claire McCoppin and children of St. Joseph.

Planned Violence to Carry Out Robberies

Accomplice of Man Sentenced Here Confesses Scheming to Slug Several Victims.

Byron Welch, who was taken to the state prison yesterday to serve a fifteen year term for robbing the Community Store at Quitman, and his pal, John Beverly of Roodhouse, Ill., went to Gallatin last Friday night to rob and to murder if necessary, according to the Gallatin Democrat.

Welch implicated Beverly as his accomplice in the robbery of the Burlington Railway station and Community Store at Quitman, breaking into the farm house of the Hunt sisters, west of Maryville, on Christmas Day, and an unknown farm house south of Maryville.

The Democrat gives the following story of the depredations of the two men in that vicinity before Welch was sentenced here Tuesday:

"Young Beverly was arrested in Brookfield, Mo., but Welch got away from the officers there and was arrested at St. Joseph later.

"John Beverly was brought to Gallatin by Brookfield officers and turned over to Sheriff Houghton who placed him in jail. Mr. Houghton was successful in getting a confession from young Beverly, who seems to be young in crime, and he gave the following story:

"'Byron Welch and I have been together sometime and on Thursday we were in St. Joseph, Mo., where we secured a car and came to Cameron, Mo., going to Jamesport, where we secured another car, leaving the first one there. From Jamesport we came to Gallatin, but being without any fire arms, Welch suggested we go to Brookfield as he knew a place where we could secure a gun.

"'We were picked up at Brookfield, and while the officers were talking to me, Welch made his escape, and went to St. Joseph. Detectives there arrested Welch, having had notice to be on the lookout for him.

"'Before going to Brookfield from Gallatin we went to the home of the Knight sisters who live just south of Gallatin, with the intention of slugging and robbing these two women as Welch said they always had money in the house. On arriving at their home we discovered a third woman there, and our nerve failed us.

"'We came back to town and went to the Wabash depot where we intended to slug the night man (Jess Binney) and carry off what money was there. A large wrench was used as a club. The night man went out for a bucket of coal, but as the blow was about to be given him he raised up and went back into the depot. We were foiled for the second time.

"'At this time we decided to go to Brookfield and were arrested as above stated.'

"Byron Welch was wanted at Maryville, Mo., on several charges and was turned over to the sheriff of Nodaway County.

"Young Beverly is being held in Daviess county jail on the charge of car theft, and from the fact that he has turned state's evidence will probably draw a lighter sentence.

"These two young men have been working together for some time and have been implicated in a number of robberies. It is indeed fortunate they have been apprehended."

S. T. C. SQUAD DROPS FIRST

KANSAS CITIANS WIN FROM BEARCATS, 42-22.

SECOND HALF CLOSER

Catholic Community Club Margin In This Period Only 22-16.—Lawrence Uses Ten Men.

The State Teachers College basketball team got off to a none too auspicious start of their 1927 cage season last night by losing a game to the Catholic Community Club of Kansas City at the Armory in Kansas City, 22 to 42.

The game, which was the first of the season for the Bearcats, does not afford much means of comparison as far as conference games are concerned. The C. C. C. defeated Warrensburg, 30 to 12.

The Maryville team was playing against an outfit of experienced basketeers, several of them nationally famous. Most of the Bearcat followers did not expect their team to win, but the outcome is more or less of a blow to some followers of the team who predicted that it would enjoy a victorious season. The result of the game is evidence that Coach H. F. Lawrence was right in admonishing fans not to hope for too much at first.

An analysis of the game shows that the Bearcats were pretty much up in the air in the first half, and that they played far better basketball in the second period. At the end of the first semester the score was 20 to 6 in favor of the Kansas City team, in the second half the Triple C's scored 22 points while the Maryville team was annexing 16.

Ten Bearcat Players Used.

Coach Lawrence used ten men in the game, while the Kansas Citians used but seven. The Maryville coach could like have kept the score closer if he had not given so many men a chance to play, but he figured that the experience would be better than a closer score.

The line-up which started for Maryville was the same as Coach Lawrence predicted before he left for Kansas City yesterday. Hedges and Burks started at forwards, Ferguson jumped center and went back to guard, and Berst and Joy started at the guard positions, with the former playing the floor at center.

Paul Burks led the scoring for Maryville with six field goals and one free throw. Hedges was second with three free throws, and Lisle, Ungles, and Berst each made a field goal.

The Maryville team drove to Kansas City yesterday afternoon and returned to Maryville last night. Coach Lawrence and Paul Jones, his assistant, remained in Kansas City to see the K. C. A. C.-Missouri game of tonight.

First Home Game Next Week.

The Bearcats will open the season at home next Thursday night against the Tarkio College quintet.

Following is the box score of the game last night:

M. H. S. GIRLS PUT UP GOOD BATTLE BEFORE ALBANY.

AHEAD AT THE HALF

Game Is Near End Before Visitors Take Winning Lead.—Maryville Coach Well Pleased.

Maryville High School's girls basketball team lost to Albany last night. They lost, 32 to 25, after they had played Albany on equal terms for three quarters, after Maryville had led the visitors, 16 to 14, at the end of the first half and only when the victors exerted a final spurt in the waning minutes to pull the game from the fire.

The Maryville girls, who have been drilling long, strenuous hours under their coach, Miss Ruth Bookman, wanted to win. They wished to erase their defeat of last year at the hands of Albany.

But Old Man Allah did not hang his colors on the Maryville players long enough last night, when the two sextets battled before a large crowd at the high school gymnasium.

He failed them when a few true flips at the basket would have meant victory. But the local girls learned much by their defeat of Jay Puckett's team from Albany. Mr. Puckett, son of the Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Puckett, of this city, was accompanied by fifteen Albany basketball fans, who gave their all in howls and shrieks.

For Maryville the fighting spirit of Miller, captain, was always in evidence.

Pulsiter, for Albany, distinguished herself by looping nine field baskets for the greatest number of points.

Miss Bookman, in commenting on the game, said she was well pleased with the showing of her girls, who were pitted against the strongest team they have met this season.

Maryville line-up: Chick, f, 5 field goals, one free throw; Wray, f, 6 field goals, 2 free throws, Miller, jc and captain; Murray, rc; Smith and F. Wray, guards.

Albany: Magee, f, 6 field goals, 2 free throws; Pulsiter, f, 9 field goals; Adams, jc; Fee, rc; Gray and Perman, guards. Substitutes, Gray for Magee; Griffany for Pulsiter; George for Perman.

Lorene Bruckner, S. T. C., was referee.

Burlington Defeats Two Pickering Teams

First Teams Battle to a 11 to 17 Score.—Monk, Burlington, Suffers Broken Collar Bone.

The Burlington Junction high school boys teams turned back an invasion of Pickering High School lads at Burlington Junction last night.

The first teams of both schools battled furiously in a low score game, 11 to 7, and the game between the second teams was 20 to 6.

In a collision with McKee of Pickering, Monk, Burlington Junction forward, suffered a broken collar bone, as both made a scramble to get the ball.

The battle between the first teams was reported as one of the best this season at Burlington Junction. Captain Jones led the offense for the Burlington boys.

Drinks Milk for Breakfast

Here is what he says:

"My breakfast simply consists of a glass of milk and is matter of one minute. I drink it at the table in small gulps so that it might be properly saliviated."

"MILK IS A WONDERFUL FOOD"

"—perhaps the best food known to men. This one glass of Milk contains enough nourishment to sustain me until the midday meal, six hours hence."
